Foreword

Much has happened since that day four years ago, when one hundred and ninety-six freshmen unpacked their suitcases and registered at Roberts' Hall. The thought of living together for four years was thrilling, and many things were to be done. There was so much ahead of us! Of course we were green for a while, but before long we learned our way around and began to feel that we were a part of the college. Then came those terrible days when many of our fellow classmates left us to join the armed forces. We were heartbroken at the thought, but the boys themselves took it bravely. Although we who remained have missed them, the memory of the happy times we have had together will always be with us.

High Point College will always hold a place deep in our hearts. We have grown to love the college, the students, the faculty, and all that is a part of it. May this book serve to keep fresh in our minds forever memories of our friends, our teachers, and our college.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

To the Student Government we express our appreciation for the successful dances and parties which will be among our happiest memories of High Point College.

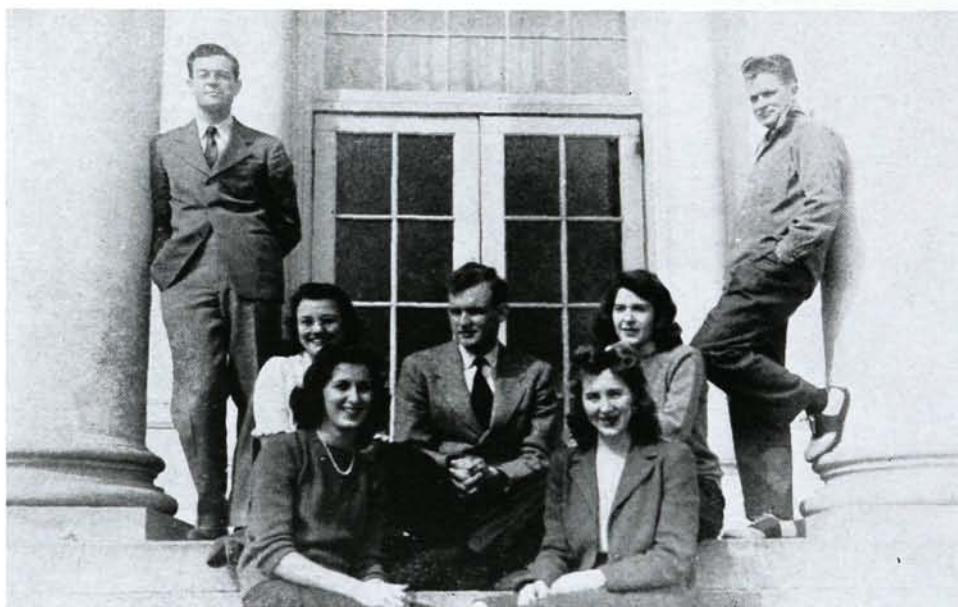

With Lawrence Walker as president and the other officers—two representatives from each class and the presidents of the dormitory and day student councils—the Student Government admirably promoted social life on the campus, and also formed the student regulations.

The Annual Christmas banquet and dance, the Hallowe'en barn dance, the Valentine party, and the spring formal were among the outstanding social events sponsored by the Student Government this year.

Members are Lawrence Walker, president; Marjorie Payne, vice president; Tal Cole, Jack Foster, Bill Hoyle, Ruby Parker, Wanona Rash, Doris Rothrock, Joe Taylor and Helena Upshaw.

Home Management House

Every girl working for a bachelor of science degree in Home Economics is required to live in the Practice House for six weeks during the last semester of her senior year. The girls consider this a privilege, and together they practice the principles they have learned in their four years of training.

They actually manage the house, which gives them a better understanding of the value and importance of a budget. They are industrious workers, but enjoy planning, cooking, and eating their meals, as well as dusting and arranging furniture. All the jobs which go with the duties of a good housewife are practiced by these students. There are all sorts of parties, teas, dinners, and many "formals." They adopt the motto "Experience is the best teacher," and carry it out to the fullest degree.

The Home Management House is under the supervision of Miss Ada Johnson, head of the Home Economics Department, who guides and directs the girls in their practice work. The girls who are enjoying the Practice House this year are Henrietta Bundy, Martha Hamm, Sarah King, and Arlene Steelman.

This year six students were inducted into The Order of the Lighted Lamp at the annual tapping ceremony of members. To be taken into this society is the most coveted honor a student may receive at the college. The requirements for membership are based on scholarship, leadership, character, and service, and a student must have an average of B, or better, for the five preceding semesters, with no conditions or failures. The students are nominated by the old members and are elected by the faculty. These students are to be congratulated, for membership in The Lighted Lamp is an honor few achieve.

Each year the faculty elects a group of students from the junior class to serve as college marshals. They are elected on the basis of appearance, dependability, character, and scholarship. To be elected marshal is a high honor.

The duties of the marshals are to serve at lectures, concerts, chapel programs, commencement exercises, and all college functions.

This year's marshals are to be commended for the way in which they have carried out their duties and upheld the standards upon which they were chosen.

Athletics

SECTION IV

Athletic Association

The Athletic Council is responsible for much of the school spirit of the campus. The members of the council direct and supervise all intercollegiate sports in which the college participates. By means of physical education classes and intramural sports, they extend the athletic program to every student on the campus.

Since the manpower shortage has made it impossible to continue with many of the intercollegiate sports, an Intramural Committee has been formed to promote more interest in intramural games, and to broaden the extra-curricular life of the college student. From all appearances the intramural program has met with decided success.

PANTHERS

The Panthers began the season with all new recruits except for one letter man; yet this, in one way at least, has been an epoch-making year for the team. The remarkable history that the team has made is due to one of the new prospects, Nancy Isenhour, a senior girl, who gained a position on the squad. Nancy is the first girl ever to play on a boys' basketball varsity in any college. Her participation in the games helped to boost the spirit of the players as well as that of the student body, and the novelty of her playing on the team has brought considerable publicity to the college. Not only was her picture featured in local newspapers, but it also appeared with a feature article in Collier's Magazine; and a photographer from the Universal News Reel took pictures of her on the campus and in action for an oddity short.

The team played a number of strong service teams, and, although they lost most of these tilts, they gained valuable experience which enabled them to win six out of ten conference games. Two of our players, Malcolm Sullivan and Arthur Sheek, were chosen by the coaches of the conference for guard positions on the All-North State Conference Team.
